MORGAN DISCOURAGED.

He Left Washington Without Having Secured Any Promises for a Syndicate Contract.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 5.—The true history of Mr. Morgan's visit to Washington in connection with the bond issue was given out to-night by a gentleman who occupies a close position to Secretary Carlisle. "All this talk," said this gentleman, "about an agreement having already been reached with Mr. J. Pierpont Morgan, or any one else regarding a new contract for the sale of bonds, is unfounded and you can so state.

Mr. Morgan came to Washington last week as a business man looking for an investment. He came here entirely unsolicited by any one. He was accompanied by Mr. Stetson, purely as a companion, with no view of drawing up another bond contract and without any knowledge of the matter. Mr. Morgan, who is a man of official here that either himself or Mr. Stetson was on the way. Neither of them saw Mr. Cleveland. Both did, however, go to the Capitol, where they interviewed Senator Sherman and other prominent members of the Senate.

Mr. Morgan's object was to ascertain whether there was any chance of the House

THE SCENE IN THE BALTIMORE CATHEDRAL DURING THE INVESTIGURE OF CARDINAL SATOLLI.

SATOLLI IS NOW A CARDINAL

Magnificent Ceremonies the Conferring of the Beretta in Baltimore.

Notable Speeches by Delegates of the Catholic Church.

Cardinal Gibbons Places the Hat Upon the New Cardinal's Head.

SATOLLI'S WORDS ABOUT AMERICA.

The Pope Sends a Special Blessing Cable to All the Children of the Church in America in Recognition of the Event.

Rome, Italy, Jan. 3, 1896.

A sua Eminenza Cardinale Gibbons, Arcivescovo di Baltimore:

La solennita straordinaria dell'occasione di presentare in beretta al Cardinale Satolli riempie l'animo di gioia al santo padre. Sua santita ringrazia vostra eminenza ed invia a tutti coloro presenti la sua apostolica benedizione.

M. CARD. RAMPOLLA.

Rome, Italy, Jan. 3, 1896.

To His Eminence Cardinal Gibbons, Archbishop of Baltimore:

The extraordinary solemnity accompanying the conferring of the beretta on Cardinal Satolli pleases the Holy Father beyond measure. His Holiness thanks Your Eminence, and grants to all present the Apostolic Benediction.

M. CARD. RAMPOLLA.

By Richard Malcolm Johnston.

Baltimore, Md., Jan. 5.—Among all ceremonies, the investiture of a Cardinal of the Catholic Church is doubtless the most imposing. Through the centuries it has been signalled by great events which have made interesting a very great portion of the history of mankind. The Christian world, Catholic and non-Catholic, watches with interest the investiture of a Cardinal. It is a place made vacant in that company which not often reaches, and never goes beyond, the number of seventy-two. Of many sorts are the considerations in the mind of the Sovereign Pontiff, while providing the list of eminent names from which to choose, considerations not only for the loyal perpetuation of religious faith, but for the maintenance of harmonious relations toward the other sovereigns of the world. It behooves the Pope, therefore, to be not only a man of holy living, but a scholar, a philosopher and a statesman also. So also must be the man who is to be put into a position where it will become possible to inherit the tiara and throne. Perhaps not in single instances, certainly within many centuries, has such a selection met with more hearty welcome than that of Cardinal Satolli.

A SCENE TO BE COMMEMORATED.

It was a scene to be commemorated. The hour of ten the procession began move from Calvert Hall, near by, on Calvert and Mulberry streets. First a long line of acolytes, laden from eight to ten years of age, from the various churches of town, where they are accustomed to sit at the altar. Following these were a hundred seminarians in the schools of philosophy and theology, conducted by the Superior, at St. Mary's, on Paca street, and presided over by the eminent Dr. Magnien. At this and other intervals religious ranks walked many distinguished civilians. Noteworthy among the line representatives of religious orders—the Augustinians, at whose head was the Very C. M. Driscoll; the Dominicans, under provincial, the Very Rev. Dr. H. Benedictines, Capuchins and the Franciscans, under the guidance of the nephew of the Cardinal.

It was intensely interesting to see these monks, humble as they are, clothed in costumes of far-gone ages, one—the Augustinians—nearly 1,500 years old. These garments, not more than their visages, so pale and worn, but with no token of age or any degree of discontent, their vigils and fastings and their absolute relinquishment of joys and aspirations.

There came on, then, the long line of priests and the fifty bishops and archbishops, with their attendants. And, Cardinal Gibbons, six young acolytes, his scarlet robe of state.

A procession as various in the elements of which it was composed as in the beholders, has not had its equal in this country. Men and women of many creeds and with like recognition of the honor and worship it was meant to render to the night.

THE CEREMONIAL OF INVESTITURE. During the filing into the Cathedral, at proper intervals the choir sang, to be the best trained of any in the land, music according with the

STARVING ON THE SOUND.

For Three Months Captain Wilcox and His Family Cruised in Search of Work. Rescued from Death.

New Haven, Conn., Jan. 5.—For twelve weeks Captain A. Wilcox, of Ansonia, his two daughters and a boy named Albert Shaw, have braved the winter seas in a little yawl. Their sufferings from exposure and lack of food have been terrible, and during all this time they have subsisted entirely on a few bushels of clams. Last night they were taken from their boat, half starved, and perishing from cold, with the mercury only a few degrees above zero.

Wilcox is seventy years of age, and, with his daughters and the boy, put out three months ago in search of work in their eighteen-foot yawl, which has a cabin three by five feet. Up and down the Sound they cruised, applying for work all along the Long Island shore, but without success. Then, discouraged, they put back toward the dangerous seas. The oldest daughter became dangerously ill; then the captain's health gave way, and he became so helpless that he could not move from his bunk in the narrow cabin. One little stove served the purpose of cooking food and drying their scant clothing.

The night now devolved on the younger daughter, who is but seventeen, and the boy. Together they navigated their craft into this port, and were caught in the ice, where for days they remained without food or fire. Finally, through the efforts of the resolute young girl, help came, and the unfortunate were taken off and cared for by the neighbors, though probably too late in the father's case, for he is not expected to survive the terrible exposure through which he has passed.

MARRIED HER ON THE RUN.

Then the Ardent Wooer Deserted His Bride with Equal Celerity.

Bridgeport, Conn., Jan. 5.—Charles Murphy, of Danbury, arrived here Friday night and met Minnie Smith of this city. It was a case of love at first sight, and after a courtship of a few hours Murphy proposed and was accepted. Arrangements for the marriage were made with equal celerity. A lack was engaged and the couple, with two companions, started for Stratford to be married.

The town clerk of Stratford is named Stagg, and there is also Deputy Sheriff Stagg, of the same place. In the search for the town clerk to secure the license they got the Sheriff. He was suspicious and at first was going to detain the couple. After a search they found the right Stagg and the license was secured. Then a clergyman was located, and at midnight the accommodation preacher got out of bed and performed the ceremony. The party then returned to this city.

Yesterday morning Murphy left town without saying even good-by to his wife. Mrs. Murphy is here and does not relish the idea of being deserted on the first morning of her married life. Murphy's friends say that Miss Smith had been married before and has never been released from the first matrimonial bonds, and that Murphy, realizing he had been duped, quietly left the city and his bride behind.

HARRISON'S MISSION EAST.

The Object of His Trip Here This Week, It Is Believed, Is to Wed Mrs. Dimmock.

Indianapolis, Ind., Jan. 5.—The accidental discovery that ex-President Harrison will leave for New York during the present week has revived the gossip about his intended marriage. His personal and political friends generally agree that the reports regarding him and Mrs. Dimmock are true, and it is not improbable that his marriage will occur during his visit to New York.

It is said that the improvements at the North Delaware street homestead are now complete, and his going East just at this time is regarded as significant in connection with the refurbishing and overhauling of the house.

Within the past month the decorators have been at work almost constantly, and the walls and ceilings of the lower floor apartments have been handsomely papered, the floors recarpeted and several pieces of new furniture added to the house. Similar, but not such elaborate improvements have been made on the apartments of the second floor, and the house is now elegantly furnished throughout, and it is one of the most attractive homes in the city.

As Mrs. McKee had taken up her residence in the East, when these improvements were making, their significance was not understood at the time, but the reported engagement to Mrs. Dimmock has explained them and seems now to the ex-President's friends indubitable proof that his early marriage is a certainty. His friends will not be surprised to hear of his marriage at any time after he reaches New York.

TAMMANY MEN TO VOTE.

Primaries in All the Assembly Districts to Be Held by the Hall To-day.

Hot Fight in the Thirty-first and Thirty-fourth Against Welde and Seabold.

OUTSIDE DEMOCRATS REMAIN COY.

William Brookfield's Executive Committee to Consider Republican Enrollment Frauds and How to Down Platt and Lauterbach.

Tammany Hall will hold its primaries today in all the Assembly districts in the city. The polls will open at 2 o'clock in the afternoon, and will close at 9 o'clock, thus giving every member of the organization an opportunity to vote for delegates to the General Committee for 1896.

There will be contests in a majority of the thirty-five districts, and in two of them the excitement over the result is at fever heat. These are the Thirty-first and Thirty-fourth districts.

In the former David Welch is at the head of a formidable opposition to ex-Police Justice Welde, the leader of the district. Both sides have made a house to house canvass and will tally every vote. Welch is confident that he will defeat Welde, who is being backed by the Gilroy faction. The young element in the district is with Welch, and they claim that Welde has been conducting the district organization as a close corporation, ignoring everybody outside of the members of his own family and the friends of ex-Mayor Gilroy and ex-Deputy Commissioner White. Deputy Commissioner Jacob Seabold, the Tammany leader in the Thirty-fourth district, says he will defeat James F. Bishop, ex-Alderman James Owens and William Ellis, confidential clerk to Mr. Gilroy when Mayor. Seabold's opponents have been very active for the last six weeks, and they are confident they will turn him down for good. Seabold has engaged every sort of a vehicle that he could find, and he will give the voters a free ride to the polling booths and return. He also will have the employees of the Department of Street Improvements to do his bidding.

The fight against Seabold is an old one and goes back to the days when the late Louis J. Heintz headed a belt in the upper part of the city and defeated Henry D. Purroy's candidate in a fight for the control of the Department of Street Improvements. Seabold made enemies at that time, who have never forgiven him. They have made many attempts to drive him out, but so far he has managed to get the best of every contest, although he narrowly escaped defeat at the September primaries.

UNDER THE PRIMARY LAW.

The district leaders all called in person or sent representatives to Tammany Hall yesterday for the purpose of procuring blanks and making arrangements for today's battle, which will be the warmest held in the Wigwam for years. Every inspector and teller who officiates will be required to take the Constitutional oath of office and the returns will be filed in the office of the County Clerk. The primary will be conducted strictly in conformity with the Primary Election law.

Very few Democrats outside of Tammany have accepted the invitation of the bravos for all Democrats to participate in the primaries, although many members of the State Democracy have signified their intention to vote at the primary in the Thirty-fourth District in order to try and defeat Seabold.

REPUBLICAN ENROLLMENT FRAUDS.

William Brookfield's Executive Committee, appointed to probe the frauds in the Republican enrollment, will meet tonight at the Windsor Hotel and listen to the report of the sub-committee as to the plan of the proposed investigation, preliminary to the struggle to drive Thomas G. Platt and Edward Lauterbach out of the party. The Committee of Twenty-five, appointed by the Board of Trade and Transportation, to secure the Democratic National Convention for this city, will meet this evening at the Fifth Avenue Hotel and make arrangements for the sending of a delegation to Washington to appear before the National Committee and urge the claims of
